Global Dental Market

Executive Summary

Sound oral health and hygiene is of utmost importance for the overall well-being. With changing times, humans are witnessing altered lifestyles and eating habits, of which some are healthy and some are unhealthy. The unhealthy dental habits are the root of severe dental problems such as dental carries, oral cancer, malocclusions, etc. Dental diseases could be classified into periodontitis, gingivitis and dental caries. Dental has a very strong history finding its roots back into the era of Neolithic sites in Baluchistan.

The global dental market could be segmented into dental equipment, dental consumables and dental software. The dental equipment includes the tools, appliances and apparatus which are specifically designed to aid diagnosis, monitoring or treatment of a patient suffering from diseases of the teeth and gums.

Dental consumables are used on patients by dental practitioners or dentists in order to treat and perform procedures associated with preventive, restorative, diagnostic and emergency oral health issues.

Dental software is a computer technology used by dental professionals, dental laboratories, dental academic and research institutes, and forensic laboratories for the diagnosis, prevention, treatment, research, and investigation of oral health conditions.

The global dental market has increased at a significant CAGR during the years 2016-2017 and projections are made that the market would rise in the next four years i.e. 2018-2022 tremendously.

The dental market is expected to increase due to growth in female population, declining prices of tobacco, increasing GDP per-capita, etc. Yet the market faces some challenges such as, less number of dentists in emerging countries, high cost of dental software and lack of dental awareness.
